Virtual Brass, Aeternus is a Virtual Brass instrument, featuring solo Trumpet, Cornet, Trombone, Tuba, French Horn, Flugelhorn as well as Brass Sections and Orchestral Ensemble. The instrument is a 'Virtual Brass', which means that it is based on a tight integration of an incredible amount of real, physical brass instrument sound sources. These are then custom-processed and mixed to an incredible high precision to mimic the sound of a large brass section. No patch is ever the same, it can always be a new, exciting experience! The powerful sound engine consists of more than 1580 simultaneous virtual brass instruments. Use the sliders to interactively influence the timbre, dynamics, pitch and tonal quality of each instrument. Aeternus is a powerful and versatile instrument. Its control possibilities are vast. Create different types of brass sounds, ranging from solo and traditional solos to brass sections and orchestral ensembles. Features: * Solo Trumpet, Cornet, Trombone, Tuba, French Horn, Flugelhorn as well as Brass Sections * Sibilance controllable for each instrument * True to the original instrument, the sound engine is based on 8 real brass instruments, including a slide trumpet * Playback and modulation control on each sound source (aeternus manual) * Solo Trumpet, Cornet, Trombone, Tuba, French Horn, Flugelhorn and Brass Sections can be patched in various combinations to create a huge variety of brass arrangements * 1580 Virtual Brass Instruments * Realistic sound timbre, envelopes and dynamics * 15 channel mixer and reverb effect * 8 channels mixer, all instruments can be routed to the same channel * Patchable virtual instruments * Volume and pan * Adjustable resonance * DSP Plugin * 4 assignable footswitches * 8 assignable MIDI controllers (8 sliders and 8 assignable knobs) Version 3.1.2 - Fix for pedal keys on Quick-Edit-Screen, which should now be properly assigned to the left, right and center functions. Version 3.1.1 - Solved problem with the fact, that the instrument now first shows up at its default position of the main menu (even when you just have launched the application), when you click on 'New' in the main menu, as 77a5ca646e

What's New in the Aeternus Brass VSTi?

Aeternus is a virtual brass instrument. The Aeternus is made up of 5 distinct parts: Solo Trumpet, Cornet, Trombone, Tuba, and French Horn. In addition to that, it features a section for 20 different brass sections. These sections can be added or removed at will, and each of them can be assigned to your keys for each of your notes. The Aeternus provides all the controls needed to play virtuoso performances. Aeternus has the power to reach all the way to orchestral sizes. You can play up to the 2nd Octave, but even the 3rd Octave is possible. Aeternus is as much a virtual instrument as it is a brass instrument. Aeternus is currently only available for Windows and Mac computers.As a former D.C. intern, I was busy dodging cougars. But the interns I met had other things on their minds. They were busy eating. We were invited to attend a “Dinner and a Show” benefit, and after months of hard training, we were excited to finally get to dine with the leaders of DC’s “social and professional elite” (one of them joked that it was like a club that didn’t admit women). I filled up on a lot of food. But the interns were nothing if not voracious eaters, and they ate a lot of black-eyed peas. At the end of the night, we were informed that we could stay and party. So we did. At the bottom of the stairs, I was met by a girl who had obviously been drinking for at least an hour, because she started laughing when I told her the name of the event. “Karaoke! I love karaoke!” she exclaimed, as I smiled awkwardly. We grabbed our stuff and headed out to the stairs and escalators. “I’m going first. I have the quickest feet!” I told her, realizing that I was about to go up against a string of debaucherous young professionals with years of drinking experience and far more “swag” than I could possibly muster. The staircase had once been part of the “Kennedy Center” building. Now, it was one of the few empty spaces left in DC, lined with a long line of old, black and red stairs. She took the stairs two at a time, jumping from one to the next and pointing and laughing at me as I lumbered up to keep up. I arrived on the fourth floor and began to sweat. We had been told that it wasn’t too hot for “those who can work up a sweat,” but I had no idea how you worked up a sweat in a room with lights
