A: This problem occurs because the solution generated by the Android Studio is not compatible with the version of the parser you are using to process the xml document. You need to change your version of the parser and the configuration of the project, so the compiler can find the solution for the compiled classes. To do this, follow the next steps: Close Android Studio. Open the folder of your project and delete the folder named ".idea" From the command line, go into the folder of your project and type:

gradlew.bat idea ctrl+alt+shift+A
Then update the gradle dependencies from the Android Studio after this, in order to the developer version. Modify the files named res/values/styles.xml and res/values-v21/styles.xml, so it is deleted both. After this, in the directory of the project, you will have to create a new file named gradlew.bat, and inside it you have to add these lines:

compileOptions {
    sourceCompatibility
        JavaVersion.VERSION_1_8
    targetCompatibility
        JavaVersion.VERSION_1_8 }
}
```

Change

JavaVersion.VERSION_1_8

according to your current Java version. In the same directory of the project, you have to go in a terminal inside the project folder and run the command `gradlew bootstrap`. Go to the folder with the `build.gradle` file in Android Studio. Then update dependencies from the library of the Gradle version you are using (if is lower than 4.10) and add the next line to the file buildscript:

classpath 'com.android.tools.build:gradle:3.1.2' After this, in order to use the repository, you have to change the path. If the library is not installed on your machine yet, install it, and update the path from the project, so the library takes the version you are using:
buildscript { dependencies { classpath 'com.android.tools.build

:gradle:3.1.2' classpath "com.jfro
g.bintray.gradle:gradle-bintrayplugin:1.7.4" } } And in the root
gradle file 1cb139a0ed
