With import and assist features, you can rapidly import feedback you've received from customers or your peers, and incorporate those changes directly into your drawings. You can also add markup labels with two-dimensional or three-dimensional geometry to your drawings. Object Snap: Seamlessly align multiple objects and fit to curves, surfaces, and dimensions. How to see it in action When working with a project that includes multiple models, you need to be able to align them in an efficient way. For example, you might want to be able to align multiple parts to the inside, outside, or top of a curved wall. In AutoCAD's Object Snap you can accomplish this with a single command. Object Snap is a window feature that enables you to snap to dimensions, curves, and surfaces. The first time you activate this feature, you'll need to choose a target, which is the feature on which you want to start the selection. Once you've selected a target, you'll see a palette of options. You can use these options to select objects based on their geometric properties, such as their centroid, and choose to snap based on properties that aren't found in your geometric target, such as dimensions. You can also choose to snap by constraint, which is a set of parameters defined by you. Use the Object Snap window to align objects based on their geometry and dimensions. When you're ready to select your objects, simply click and drag. Once you've released the mouse button, the object's location and rotation is automatically updated, allowing you to work with the selected objects in relative positions and orientations. Object Snap by Constraint Snap to 2D curves Select and snap the objects in your drawing to the edges or boundaries of a 2D curve. Object Snap by Dimension Select and snap the objects in your drawing to the edges or boundaries of a dimension. Use the Object Snap window to align objects based on their geometry and dimensions. This video shows you how to select and snap to the top, bottom, or inside of a curve or an object. The number of constraints that can be set in this window is limited by your drawing size. In a large drawing, this might be useful for aligning multiple objects to the inside or outside of a curve, but for smaller drawings it might be better to
