This particular stream was mediocre, but it was free and did get me through 2 sessions of watching two teams at once. That was something I haven't had happen to

[ZVG] The Elden Ring has been released on Google play and App Store. Recently, there have been numerous blog articles about the launch of the game published. Reviewers claim Elden Ring is a fantasy RPG [RPGM] or a fantasy action RPG. [RPGM] For now, I'm just going to stick to RPGM. They also talk about the new world map and have different opinions on it. [wiki] This game is created by Bluehole, the famous game developer for the popular multiplayer games like: League of legends, Dead Island. Elden Ring is the first standalone game released by Bluehole (CCP Games) since the launch of the cross platform game PUBG (PlayerUnknown's Battlegrounds). Bluehole has reached far beyond developing a simple survival game, creating a detailed and diverse world. The detail of the world is outstanding, with mountains, caves, forests, flowers, and towers (though towers are hidden in some areas, the rest of the game they are easy to find) that come together to create a unique fantasy world. This is also the first game from Bluehole that allows the player to create a character from start to finish, in addition to the main character you play. This is how the story unfolds as you create your character. The character designs may be simple to not look like the real world, but they can be expressive and unique with a variety of options to customize your character. There are two playable races. Elves, and Dwarves. In addition to the two races, they have some other races for you to play as. Some available races include: Nomad Vampires, Mech Knights, and more. As far as options to customize your character, you have a variety of options to choose from. Weapons and Armor, Eye Colour, Hair Colour, and more. There are four body types as well as facial types. None of these will break the immersion for this game, and everything is optional. There are monsters that drop artifacts you can use to customize your character. For equipment, you can collect an array of different weapons and armor. The combat is a mix between a turn based system and real time action game. You can set a turn and the computer is one step ahead of you for the turns. You would have the opportunity to block your opponent's attacks and damage with your own attacks. Some monsters are identified by the color of the icon above them. If you kill an enemy with a unique weapon, it will leave that weapon icon on that monster. bff6bb2d33
